Design and Delivery of Information Systems and Computer Science Courses in Quality Learning Virtual Environment*

Gurmukh Singh PhD
Visiting Assistant Professor and Kasling Lecturer
Department of Computer and Information Sciences
SUNY Fredonia, Fredonia, NY 14063
singh@fredonia.edu

In a very fast changing modern digital age, higher education institutions must adopt a quality learning environment which could engage and educate a new, diverse breed of learners in a virtual world. Designing of quality learning virtual environments is a challenge for instructors and technical personnel. We present a report of how we met this challenge successfully in the design and delivery of dozens of Information Systems and Computer Science courses from the past four years to fulfill the demand of local and global student populations.